CDC recommends COVID-19 vaccines for all people ages 5 years and older.

For most people, staying up-to-date = 2 doses + 1 booster.

Some people, especially persons at high-risk for severe disease are better protected with additional doses.

Boosters

- Boosters are recommended based on age and immune system status.
- Boosters for most people should be at least 5 months after the last dose.
- All persons ages 12y+ should get a booster
- Persons with weaker immune systems should get extra boosters.
- Persons ages 50y+ can get an extra booster.
- Most people should get at least one dose of Moderna or Pfizer as part of their series.

Ask your health care team what vaccines are recommended for you and when you should get them.
